Last, but not least, he was involved in the implementation of a well-known computer-assisted homeopathic repertorization system (CAR) in 1992. He contributed many ideas to the software's functionality as well as the proven working techniques of a successful homeopathic practitioner (along with the know-how of a former software developer), which has been state-of-the-art for quite some time – including with other CAR systems.

He also leads working groups and parents' groups in classical homeopathy.
